ADAMS' RACKET IS EXPOSED

PENOLOGIST HELD AS INCITER OF RIOTS GROWS RABID

Also Charged With Use of Mails to Defraud Prisoners.

Muscle G. Sholes, well-known boy penologist of Middlebury College was today indicted for inciting the prisoners of Joliet (Ill.) Prison to riot. Beside facing this serious charge, government authorities have also accused him of using the mails to defraud.

Upon Sholes' return from the Philippines four years ago, he became incensed by the brutality with which prisoners at federal prisons were being treated. It was he who first made it known to the world that only one quarter of one percent of the prisoners in the United States wore silk underwear. Through his investigation it was also made known that prisoners only had a choice of three cereals for breakfast. Both of these matters have since been remedied.

Harmlessly Insane?

The present charges which Sholes face are those of sending Rust-kraft greeting cards to the prisoners bearing the message "Stone wall do not a prison make, nor iron bars a cage." It is also claimed that last Christmas he sent walking sticks to three hundred and sixty-two lifers. While some persons believe that Sholes is merely a philanthropist who has become harmlessly insane, it is believed by the majority that he has been intrusted with a great fund to foment discontent among persons detained in penal institutions so that he may bring about a new social order.

Besides facing this serious charge, it is suspected that Sholes has been defrauding a group of rich prisoners at Leavenworth by promising to pardon them in exchange for one thousand dollars in legal United States currency. According to detectives, upon receiving the cash from a prisoner, Sholes has merely mailed the deluded one a Sunday school diploma and two United

CRATER DISCOVERED ACTING AS MATH PROFESSOR

Operating of Gambling Machine Leads to Discovery by Beers.

The long search for Judge Crater was ended today, when he was discovered disguised as a professor in Middlebury college. Detectives, acting upon the clue furnished them by a mysterious individual known as Beers, discovered Crater in his hiding place. He had taken the name of B. Frank Whissler, represented himself as a graduate of Muhlenberg university, and thus received an appointment as instructor in mathematics and physics.

Crater, alias Whissler, was captured while playing the slot machines. Charges with being the missing justice, he attempted to bluff his way out of the fix, saying, "Now, if you leave delta x approach zero, log y becomes what?"

Confronted by the evidence, however, he broke down and made a complete confession. He will be taken back to New York today. Seventy-five students have offered to accompany the police and to serve as witnesses. Application should be handed in to Patrick O'Rourke at the pool parlor before 10:18 tomorrow.

Suspicion that Whissler was really the missing judge was aroused when it became known that he was gambling heavily, losing large sums at the machines and also in poker games. His companions in some of the famous all-night poker games were also taken into custody. They gave their names as Hazeltine, Harrington, Skillings, and Cady. All claimed to be connected with the college in official capacities, but police are checking over their records to see if these men are not listed in Rogues Gallery.

With the arrest of Crater, police believed it safe to release Beers' note, which is as follows:

"There is a gy by the nam of Whissler, what learns the kids mathematics. He looks lik Krater. Beers."

HORROR MILL OPERATING

FREEMAN LEADS IN SPECTACULAR DAYLIGHT RAID ON OLD CHAPEL

Pedagogy Prof. Had Been Operating Fake Education Plant With Colvin and Cubberley, Debarred Surgeons.

(Special to the SUPMAC YRUBELDDIM)

Charles Arbutus Adams of the pedagogy department was arrested tonight in connection with a state-wide fake education racket. As the result of a three years investigation conducted by Constable Freeman, it was discovered that Adams has constructed a mill similar to a sausage machine which produced 'polished' pedagogues after five months phoney treatment.

Under the guise of education courses, it was discovered that Adams had been running thousands of students through a refinery which attempted to remove their callow roughness and replace it with pedagogical pep. Whereas, it was discovered that the machine actually caused mental ossification, ennui, and decrease of animal intelligence.

The accompanying diagram gives only an external view of the factory, but its functions are fairly simple. On the left, students may be seen entering the pedagogical chute. After disappearing from sight, they are treated with hydrogen sulphide, sewer gas, and chloroform. While in an unconscious state, Messrs. Cubberley and Colvin (two doctors

Obscene Books Found in Hammond's Suite at Hepburn Hall

(Special to the SUPMAC YRUBELDDIM)

The great number of arrests at Middlebury was increased when Lansing Vander Kowshed Hammond, popular instructor in English Literature at this institution was jailed for possessing and distributing pornographic literature.

When his suite in Hepburn Hall was raided late this evening, copies of THE SATYRICON (Wilde translation), THE DIVAN, THE GOLDEN ASSE, THE HEPTAMERON OF MARGARET OF NAVARRE, MILLIE, WHAT EVERY YOUNG GIRL SHOULD KNOW?,

BEERS BRAZEN BOOK RATED BEST SELLER

Praised as Epic by Second Rate American Critics.

New York, March 24, 1931. (Special radio to the SUPMAC YRUBELDDIM) At the conclusion of Douglas Stowe Beers' lecture to the Junior League Literary Club at the Barbizon Plaza this afternoon, it was stated by Mr. M. J. Simon, of Simon and Schuster, that Dr. Beers' newest book THE MISPLACED COMMA IN DANTE'S INFERNO had reached the best seller list.

The book, which proves conclusively that Beatrice's hair was red and not black as formerly believed, is the result of seven years research on the part of Dr. Beers. According to such critics as Grover Whalen, Aimee Semple MacPherson, the descendants of the Jukes family, and Max Schmeling, the style, the poetic sensitivity, and the lusty humor of the book place it on a par with Joan Lowell's epic THE CRADLE OF THE DEEP.

Discover Beatrice in Speakeasy.

In his lecture yesterday afternoon, Dr. Beers told the Junior League that he had made his discoveries through combining paragraphs from the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, the second LUCKY STRIKE AD, the introduction to THE PRESIDENT'S DAUGHTER, and the second book of the KORAN. In his demonstration, he showed conclusively that the first letter of each line he had selected offered a cryptogram which being solved read "Visit Joe Marlen's speakeasy at 308 East 39th Street." Following the clue as soon as possible, he entered the speakeasy accompanied by Prof. J. S. Kingsley, Prof. Pius Perkins, and Senator Austin. There, after sampling the illicit beverages (which Dr. Kingsley said were equal to any-

AUFULLITCH TO HEAD RUSSIAN SUMMER SCHOOL

Prof. Ivan Aufullitch, B. O., A. A., of the University of Moscow, has accepted the position of head of the new Russian summer school to be conducted by Middlebury college this summer. The school will be located at Ripton Hollow and will run from July 4 to sometime in August.

Middlebury has long been noted for her summer schools in the languages. The policy of speaking only the language being studied, which has proved so successful in the French school, will be in force in the Russian school also.

In addition to Professor Aufullitch, the faculty will consist of Dr. Tdrinka Whissky, Prof. Runalongsky, and Mr. Lawrence Tibbett.

Because of the large numbers seeking entrance, admission requirements have purposely been made very strict. No candidate will be admitted unless his beard is at least six (6) inches in length, preferably black. Each student must bring three (3) red neckties, a soapbox, and a number of bombs in good working order. The following articles are prohibited: soap, shaving equipment, and money.

A varied and unusually full curriculum has been planned. Courses in literature and conversation will be supplemented by practical work in oratory, demonstrations, bomb throwing, decrying capitalism, and throwing fruit at policemen. At least one major demonstration will be made, including march to Middlebury, gathering in streets, blocking traffic and attacking the police force.

WILEY AND BARREL TO GO OVER FALLS

Woman Daredevil to Perform Feat for Science.

(Extra special to the SUPMAC YRUBELDDIM)

Eloine Elsa Wiley, famous woman daredevil, will attempt the stupendous feat of going over the falls of Otter Creek in a barrel. This hitherto untried exploit is one which requires the utmost courage and is fraught with the greatest danger, so that a large crowd is anticipated when the event occurs.

The unique and daring achievements of Miss Wiley are well known, including trips over Niagara Falls in a basket, long distance swims, and a back jackknife with double demi-volte dive from the Chrysler building into a glass of

Wm. Schenectady Burrage Thumbs Nose at Mussolini

Another war seems certain as a result of an attack upon Caesar by Prof. W. Schenectady Burrage, of Middlebury College. Mussolini has demanded an immediate retraction of this statement, threatening to appeal to the League or to resort to arms if necessary. The state department has made no reply as yet, while awaiting action by Prof. Burrage.

Professor Burrage, it was learned through authoritative sources late today, has locked himself in the tower of the Old Chapel and has disconnected the bell. The exact words of the professor in regard to Caesar are not known, bu the most generally accepted version is that "Caesar did not write his commentaries, it was done by a hack writer known as Winchell."

Further information is expected hourly via radio HJV, that is within an hour. Pending further developments, President Hoover has appointed a commission to consider the advisability of mobilizing the Boy Scouts to withstand the threatened invasion.

Mussolini is reported to be very, very cross about Prof. Burrage's remarks, alleging them to be a direct attack upon the glorious history of Italy and also to be totally unfounded.

A JOKE—NOTHING MORE.

Once again weird colored paper and sensational lay-out mark the appearance of another CAMPUS funny issue.

The board presents this number with the hope that it will be received for what it was meant to be—a joke—nothing more. It is not our purpose to express accumulated grudges and dislikes, or to spread obscenity and thinly veiled filth. Those who interpret the material presented here in any of these lights are reading into the paper a meaning which was never intended.

If accident, ignorance, or thoughtlessness on the part of the staff, results in the offending of any individual, the CAMPUS is sorry, and takes this opportunity to apologize.

The board desires to thank Professor White for his helpful advice and suggestions to the editors in charge of this number. The assistance of Dean Hazeltine is also appreciated.

CLASSY FRIED ADS.

SALE—Radios in fair condition. Well known makes, guaranteed for distance, all the way from the fourth floor to the first in any dormitory. Any one or all of three radios is offered to the public for the cost of moving them off the premises. Apply at any hour to South Starr.

WANTED, nay, yearned for—a class of freshmen with so great a love for good solid plugging, and such a familiarity with the C. C. room of the library that the required passing mark for the course in Contemptible Snivilization can be kept at a flat 90. All applications must be in the hands of J. S. K. not later than sometime in August.

DIED

Miss Prudent Hope Fish of the music department passed away after a brief illness at the Porter Memorial Hopsital, Tuesday, March 24. The funeral will be held in the music studio at 10:30 p. m., Friday evening in accordance with the last request of the deceased. A very vital operation revealed a chronic case of cadenza of the obligato to be the cause of the sudden death.

Miss Fish had been troubled by mild attacks of what has now been found the fitful starts of growing cadenza for several months. However, thinking little of it she overlooked them until last Saturday evening while enjoying the best of good times at the Bristol Inn in Bristol, Vt. she was afflicted with such a violent pain in her left side that she had to be taken to Porter Hospital at once by the efficient Middlebury ambulance service.

Expert doctors which were immediately summoned to her assistance performed a serious operation at once but found that the growth was in the diaphragm very near the heart. They knew it would only be a matter of a few days when the growth would touch and consequently paralyze the heart itself. To relieve the sharp pain narcotics in various forms were administered freely. Life continued in the tortured body till 4 a. m. Tuesday morning.

DRAMA REVIEW

(Ye critick indulges in a strange interlude).

About a year ago, it was our privilege to review Dr. Verrie Special Goodreds' paraphase of UNCLE TOM'S CABIN which we remarked (no, don't expect us to tell the truth—this is a drama review) that the production beat anything we had seen this side of Singapore.

This year, beside directing and staging a super-stupendous drama which is utterly utter, Dr. Goodreds played all the stellar roles to perfection. As you are no doubt aware, the production was that ultra-sophisticated comedy of REBECCA OF SUNNY BROOK FARM which has just concluded a seventeen year run at the Union Depot in Erie Pa. (Of course that's a lie but it is necessary that we impress the student body with the grandeur of the drama).

We scarcely know where to begin (and as we're stalling for time we've got to continue this damned line) so wonderful was the whole drama. As the janitor of the playhouse remarked: "It's the most glorious epic of wholesome American youth that it has ever been my humble pleasure to see so amateur a group of thespians produce." Well, that's just the way we feel about it. You can quote us as having said that ourselves.

As Rebecca, Dr. Goodreds made a charming ingenue. His innocence, his girlish figure, his beautifully modulated voice, and the intelligence with which he interpreted his lines (Where did he get that ghastly shade of rouge?) worked perfectly to give us a female impersonation we shall never forget.

As Jotham, Rebecca's uncle, Spence Goodreds was in the best of form. Despite the fact that he lost his trick beard on the average of once in three minutes, that his makeup was unspeakably bad, and that no one beyond the third row could hear a word he said, it must be admitted (we've still got our fingers crossed) that no person in the college could have duplicated his characterization.

In the role of Aunt Maria, Victor Goodreds made the most lovable old country wife we've ever seen. When he snarled at Waffles her pet poodle (played by Vee Goodreds) "Get tell outter here dod durn yer hide" there was not a person in the audience who

Fraternity Announcements

Alpha Mu of Chi Psi announces that pending the next rushing season, in order to keep their mansion properly filled, faculty teas will be in order every other week.

Plans are rapidly taking shape at the Delta Upsilon house for the establishment of a new publication. It will be published quarterly in order to combine the features of both a year book and weekly newspaper. It is understood that the circulation department will be handled by DKE.

Not being satisfied with the athletic abilities of the men in the '33 delegation, Delta Kappa Epsilon has several scouts searching for likely pledge material in the present sophomore class.

The big red barn at the KDR ranch is to be torn down. The chairman of the social committee announces that informal dances will be held in the future at the Tri Delta rooms.

A tablet is to be placed in the main hall of the Beta Kappa house (formerly the music house) in memory of Minnie Hayden.

Pledges at the Alpha Sigma Phi house, where the brethren have been regretting the loss of the glee club accompanist, include Joe Lechnyr and Cleone Ford.

The Beta Psi fraternity has recently purchased land in East Middlebury, adjoining the community house, where it is planned to erect a new lodge in 1950.

A change in diet at the Sigma Phi Epsilon house is responsible for the recent scholastic average. Only Slim Eastman objects to fish once a day.

Miss Rosebank Will Have Mixed Dancing Classes

In response to an enthusiastic petition from the men's college Miss Mignonette Sweetpea Rosebank has come to a weighty decision in regard to her class in woodland dancing. After a lengthy consultation with her forest nymphs Miss Rosebank has agreed to create a mixed class and intersperse the nymphs with satyrs.

The satyrs will be robed accordingly to long established tradition in the customary gauze costumes. Plans are being made to employ Battell forest for a rendez-vous. Basket lunches will be served to add a tone of gaiety to the occasions. The group will meet thrice weekly throughout the spring at sunrise. It is thought that this will be the most convenient time for all.

The number is limited to fifty men and women. Applications must be filed in the offices of the Deans on or before April 1, 1940.

Hominy Grits

IN THE RAW, by Pius Perkins, New York, The Vanguard Press, $0.0004.

It is with a great deal of surprise that the students of Middlebury College will learn that their beloved teacher has published the memoirs of his first year with the debating team. As one can judge by the title, the book is a gross piece of naturalism.

Until we read the scathing opus, it had been our deluded idea that debaters were nice boys who considered football and other forms of athletics too indelicate to be indulged in. Now, we learn that they take especial pleasure in hobbies which would make the Vale of Sodom look like Back Bay. For, in no indefinite terms, the author admits the debaters passion for Ann Correo a lady who has been featured by many burleycues.

Perhaps the most interesting account is his tale of how the little devils got themselves thrown out of Roxys for pitching pennies on the kettledrums. It is evident that the author has taken the part of an innocent bystander, but one wonders if the boys could have thought of all the practical jokes by themselves. At any rate, the book is an eyeopener and at times somewhat amusing. It has not been banned by the college as yet.

NAKED WITHOUT EVEN ROLLER SKATES, by Prudence MacCrane, Boston, The Pilgrim Press, $3.50.

Well, well, and well! It would seem that dear old Midd had suddenly developed a yen for literature. Here we have an empassioned novel by one of the ladies of the administration or by all of them collaborating dealing with life in the college on the hill. Tracing the growth of amatory instincts from 1825 up through the class of 1934, this book is broiling, sizzling, blistering, teaming, frying book of calf love.

One would suspect that the author knew a great deal about the college library for there is often a reference to a clandestine rendezvous in the freshman room of the lower stacks. The Fine Arts room and fastnesses of the first floor of Middle Painter also come in for their share of publicity. One gathers that there is no fishing done at Middlebury during the winter.

After reviewing Dr. Perkins' book, we fear that some of the edge will be lost as there are similarities between the two books. However, for sheer beauty of style and artistic accuracy, NAKED WITHOUT EVEN ROLLER SKATES is the better of the two. As Freud says in LIBIDO—WHAT IS IT? "As a study of the sex growth of the adolescent, this book has no equal, thank God!"

For light reading, we recommend the following books: THE BIBLE UNLOCKED WITH HAMMER AND CHISEL, The Sermons of P. D. Muddy; THROATS I HAVE CUT by E. Skillinz, (translated from the German by Dirkz); LIVES OF THE LATER DAY SAINTS by I. C. Ross; THE GAME AND HOW TO PLAY IT, by Veecie Harrington; BEDTIME STORIES by Ed. Lockwood; SOUTHERN PACIFIC LINES, or THE DANCERS OF THE SOUTH SEAS, by Stonewall Jackson Hathaway; THE DOGCART: ITS EVOLUTION AND HISTORY by W. Schenectady Burrage; SEVEN YEARS IN THE RACKET or LIFE WITH A GLEE CLUB, by Harry G. Owen.

Advance (our own idea) notices which somebody somewhere might like printed will be politely ignored if deposited last night in the office of this department, located in the check room at the Inn.

LOCKWOOD GIVES VESPERS SERMON

Flays Follies of Females; Praises College; Bemoans Prevalence of Excessive Imbibing.

President Edward P. Lockwood, newly elected head of the college displayed his versatility by addressing the student body at the Sunday chapel service. His text, chosen from paragraph III, article 316, of the revised code of the statutes of the state of North Dakota: "In the event of seizure by duly appointed representatives of the law, these saloons are to be padlocked one to three years, Sundays and holidays included," was very apt for the subject "What's coming of our younger generation", which Dr. Lockwood selected for his opening sermon.

After expounding the glorious past of this college, the state of Vermont, and the quality of the coffee at the dogcart, President Lockwood said in part: "Among my young friends of bett—younger days, I knew several who could not resist the appeal for strong drink. Why, I recall one poor lad (here Prexy brushed a tear from his cheek) one lad who went so far as to inhale buttermilk. And not in moderation, either, for it was nothing for him

Professors Jugged In Bathtub Orgy

Faculty Members and Wives in Strange Costumes Collected by Patrol Wagon.

Middlebury, Vt., March 24, 1931—The long suspected degeneracy of certain members of the college faculty was recently exposed when a so-called bridge party at the Alpha Mu Lodge was broken up by a police raid a week ago Saturday. It is claimed that a certain feminine member of the faculty whose name has been withheld by the police was caught emulating the notorious Joyce Hawley while students and male members of the faculty were following the best traditions of Earl Carroll and his cohorts.

So sudden and unexpected was the raid that when the group was removed from the police patrol wagon at the local jail, it was discovered that certain men had donned womens dresses while those women who were at all attired were clothed in masculine suits of the latest mode.

Bail From President's Purse.

Among those held at the local jail are Dr. and Mrs. Whissler, Miss Prudent Fish, Prof. J. S. Thomas, Miss Laila A. MacNeill, and Dr. and Mrs. Womack. Prof. Harry G. Owen was released under $10,000 bail that he might accompany the Middlebury glee club on its last trip of the season. According to reports, bail was furnished by Mrs. Pamela S. Powell from the president's private purse.

While rumors had been circulated about the campus throughout the winter that a fast set had developed among the younger members of the faculty, it was not until news of this raid leaked out that the students realized what an unwholesome atmosphere they had been living in.

Hides in Ash Tray.

And they would not have known now, had it not been for the diligence of Miss Crane of the Egbert Starr Library staff who, fearing for the safety of her superior, Miss MacNeill, crept unnoticed into the Alpha Mu lodge and hid in one of the ash trays in the lounge. After singing songs about the engineers not stopping at trifles, some king of England (Miss Crane was not sure which one), and one or two other new hits, the party retired upstairs.

Miss Crane immediately left her ambush, telephoned the Proctor residence and after confering with Frank Partridge, sent in a riot call. Thirty patrolmen, three captains, and Charlie Shaw responded and before the residents of the brick house across the street realized there was fresh dirt right under their noses, the miscreants had been lodged in the local gaol.

The date for a hearing has been set for Monday, April 6, as it is expected that most of the students will be away from town for the Easter vacation so most of the ugly details will not be made public.

Gross Indecency.

Said Doctor Muddy in commenting on the affair: "I did not realize that Middlebury was so torn by gross indecency. Of course it is expected that there will be some moral turpitude among such an irresponible body as a college faculty. I feel, however, that I am in no position to cast the first stone."

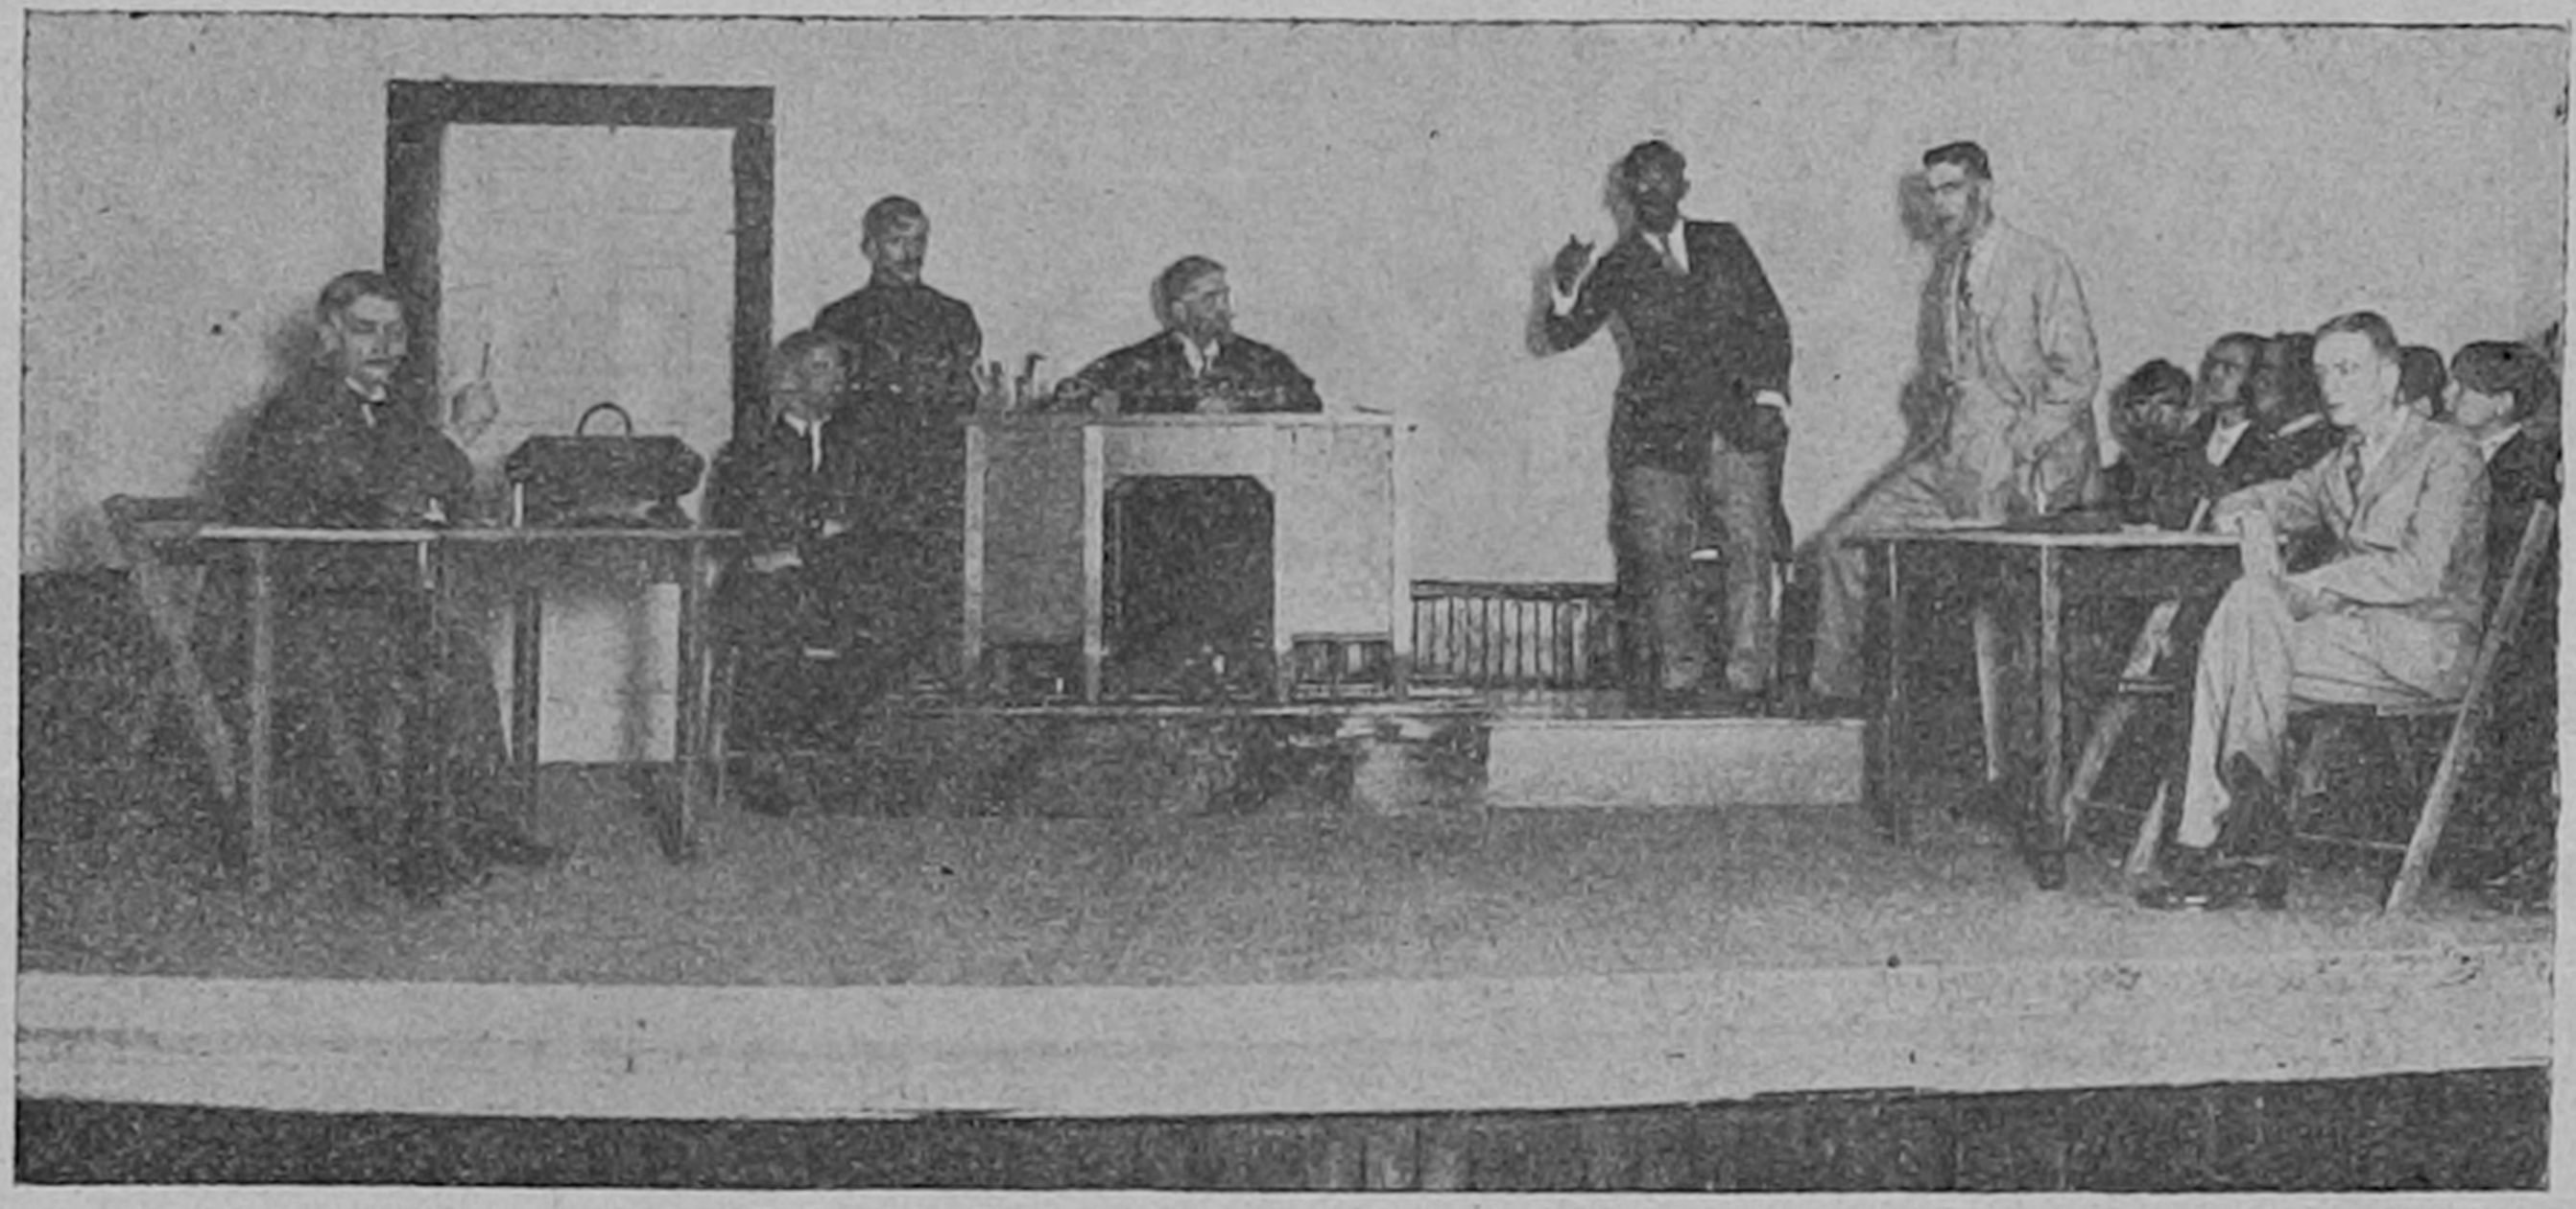
When interviewed, Dr. E. Joel Swilly said that he "did not wish to comment on the matter" but he always thought that Crane woman was not to be trusted.

Dr.'s Barney and Longwell could not be located for a statement but Harry Warner claims that this must be another case of framing or mistaken identity.

Prof. C. A. Adams of the education department stated in view of the fact that none of the persons held have taken his methods course, he cannot recommend them for another position "in case any of them should feel called on to resign."

It is also understood that senator-elect Austin plans to have a senatorial investigation of the matter as soon as he takes a seat in Congress. In the meantime most of those arrested are being held at the local jail without bail.

OWEN ON STAND IN BATHTUB CASE



Exclusive picture taken by staff photographer during preliminary hearing before Judge Leroy Bustle at local courthouse. On the witness stand, Owen swore that there was no indecency involved as none of the witnesses have ever been known to look at the naked truth. "Why," he asked, "is there any reason to believe they should change their customs on this occasion?"

Mass Law Declared Unconstitutional By J. Fessup Haller

The much attacked Mass Law received another severe blow today, when Prof. J. Fessup Haller attacked its constitutionality.

"The Mass Law", Professor Haller stated in a statement which he stated to a statement collecting reporter of the SUPMAC YRUBELDDIM, "is at complete variance with the ideals of America. It was passed at a time when war, and the necessity of close cooperation had blunted the love of liberty in the American people. It is a direct violation of the clause in the Declaration of Independence which declares that every man has a right to pursue happiness. This infamous law, railroaded through by our capitalistic legislature, is contrary to the doctrines for Washington, Jefferson, and Mayor Walker."

During his statement, made before a large gathering in the Val-Do-Mar Dining Car Deluxe, Haller walked up and down nervously, his hands clasped behind his back. A plaintive, sorrowful look came in his eyes as he said:

"Life is too precious to be lost in the attempt to enforce this law. While I do not advocate a return to the days before the law was passed, during which saloons recklessly sold precipitates and solutes, I certainly believe that the law could be effectively and profitably modified. A system of govenrment control might be adapted or perhaps we might safely leave the matter in the hands of the states. At any rate, we should have an investigation by a non-partisan commission."

Mr. P. Harold Perry, head of the Anti-Precipitate League and president of the Daughters of the American Revolution became very angry and screamed:

"It aint true. The constitutionality of the Mass Law has been upheld by the highest courts. It does not violate the ideals of independence. Professor Haller's attack is merely another effort of the text book manufacturers to go back to the old conditions under which children could understand chemistry as much as they wanted to. While I regret exceedingly the recent deaths of Ide and Yeomans as a result of this law, still I do not believe that such circumstances justify the repeal of this law. Perhaps these two youths were more deeply involved in crime than certain sentimentalists would have you believe. To trace the history of this

$13,131,313. GIVEN TO MIDDLEBURY COLLEGE BY CAPONE TO FOUND NEW SCHOOL FOR YOUNG LIQUOR AGENTS

$13,131,131.13¾ has been given to Middlebury College by Alphonse Aloysius Capone, noted Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul philanthropist. Announcement of the gift was made today by seventh vice president Muddy to a group of waiting reporters. When told the news the student body woke up, cheered, and went back to sleep again.

This vast sum will provide adequately for a new women's gym, artificial hockey rink, davenports for the freshman room in the library, and a coat of varnish for the board track. Only one stipulation has been attached to the gift. Middlebury must establish a summer school for prohibition agents, and must maintain a department in this subject during the year.

In commenting upon this provision, Mr. Capone said:

"I do not wish to seem to be putting myself on de collich in no way whatsoever, but me and my fellow citizens of Chi tink dat what dis country needs is more and better dry agents. De original bunch has gotten so much dough now dat they are getting hard to bribe. Now I asks youse, what good's a agent what can't be fixed? No good at all. Therefore, I tink dat a summer school in Midd will be a good think for this country. I'll be willing to give scholarships to any outstanding young fellows around who need a collich edjercation an' can't get it. As soon as we get some taxes out here, I'll give some of these, what do you call 'em, fellowships. Anyways, don't get me wrong, or tell what a crook I am or I'll have you took for a ride. An say, how about a Ph. D. for me?"

Comment about campus concerning the event was widespread and general.

Miss I. C. Ross, when interviewed, danced with joy and cried, "Goody, goody, I think Mr. Capone is just the nicest man. I am so happy that the girls will now be able to associate with nice prohibition students instead of having to go around with bums as they are forced to do now."

Favor Scheme.

The SUPMAC YRUBELDDIM questionnaire revealed that 99.44 per cent of the men were in favor of the scheme but wished that Al had provided for a chair in beer brewing, a course which is very much needed at present.

Richard Allen (Dick to you) Paul said in a statement made to SUPMAC YRUBELDDIM reporters:

"The beer around here is not all that it should be. Freshmen are not obeying the rules. I have complained to Prof. Womack about the beer. He said that he could do nothing about it. I'll take care of the freshmen myself."

Rudy Vallee French Professor.

Interest on the other side of the hill was also at a high pitch. Hope was expressed that Rudy Vallee could be engaged as a French professor, now that adequate funds were available.

HOT SHOT SCHMIDT FLAYED BY WIFE AS RESULT OF AMOURS

A story which has been kept secret since last summer is the experience of Bruno Schmidt and the Indian maiden. The matter came before the public when Bruno received a post card from the Grand Canyon with the words "Love and kisses from Mudjukeewehoboken" on it. His good frau became excited and applied a baseball bat to his dome until it rang like a Chinese gong. However, as "Hot Shot's" cranium is constructed like that of Ike the Butter, another Williams character, Bruno merely lit a Murad and explained the note.

Last summer, as he was trying to climb Mesa Encantada, a picture of which he must have sent you on a post card, he was chased by a wild three-headed guinea pig. (This is Bruno's story, not ours). As descent was blocked by the bloodthirsty beast, and as both sides of the trail he was following were impassable, "Hot Shot" was forced to continue upward. He did so for six days when suddenly he came to a place where erosion had washed the trail completely away. The trail continued perhaps a quarter of a mile ahead, but before him was a drop of at least ten thousand feet and close behind him was the cruel animal.

Baffles Pursuer.

For a few seconds our hero was baffled but he suddenly remembered his prize Geology lectures and taking a deep breath, he delivered one up his coatsleeve as fast as he could. The hot air resulting from the lecture bellowed out the coat, and using it as a balloon, he was soon safely across the divide, leaving the three-headed guinea pig saying all sorts of naughty things about the geology professor. Thinking that he was listening to a bunch of students back at Middlebury, Bruno tried to find his record book to record a bunch of D's and almost lost his balance.

Meets Mudjukeewehoboken.

So, he continued upward until he came to the summit. Here he found a beautiful Indian maiden who was sitting in a Lincoln Sedan reading THE AMERICAN MERCURY. Since Bruno's car is related to the Lincoln (distantly) he spoke to the young woman. In the course of their conversation, he discovered that she was Mudjukeewehoboken the grandmother of Edna Wallace Hopper and that she had been on top of the Mesa since the year before Cortez left Mexico. She explained to Bruno that her tears had eroded the rocky summit of the Mesa and that the daisies he saw there had sprung from some seed the Andree Expedition dropped as ballast.

Escapes on Daisy Chain.

Here was a great problem. Bruno was afraid of what his wife would say, and he was afraid of the guinea pig, but he did not want to stay on the mesa and he did want to save Muddy. Suddenly he remembered his senior year at Vassar when he led the daisy chain. Why not make a chain and descend by that. So they worked together three days and nights and had the chain completed.

There is little more to tell. Remembering how Commander Byrd left his airplane at Little America, Bruno decided that they would not take the Lincoln with them. After descending, "Hot Shot" got Mudjee a job selling rugs in a Harvey hotel and told his wife he had waited in vain for a street car.

BOWITZER AWARD MADE TO CARLOS, CAMPUS CUT-UP

Canine Aristocrat Prominent in Many Campus Activities.

The Bowitzer prize was awarded last week in chapel to Carlos as the most all-round representative and patriotic animal on the Campus.

Carlos has been prominent in several circles. He has assisted at all the various athletic competitions and cheered the players on to victory. He is a regular attender of the morning chapel services and takes a real interest in the Bible readings. He is a good mixer and is very popular in social functions.

Carlos is a Spanish thoroughbred, his ancestry dating back to the time of Don Carlos Quinento of the 16th century. One of his ancestors was brought over by Pizarro to Peru and the family has remained in the Americas ever since.

Carlos, himself, might be taken for a native Vermonter if it were not for a curious blackish tinge to his fur and a slight roll in his grrrowl.

He is a member of the Rah Dogma Yow fraternity.

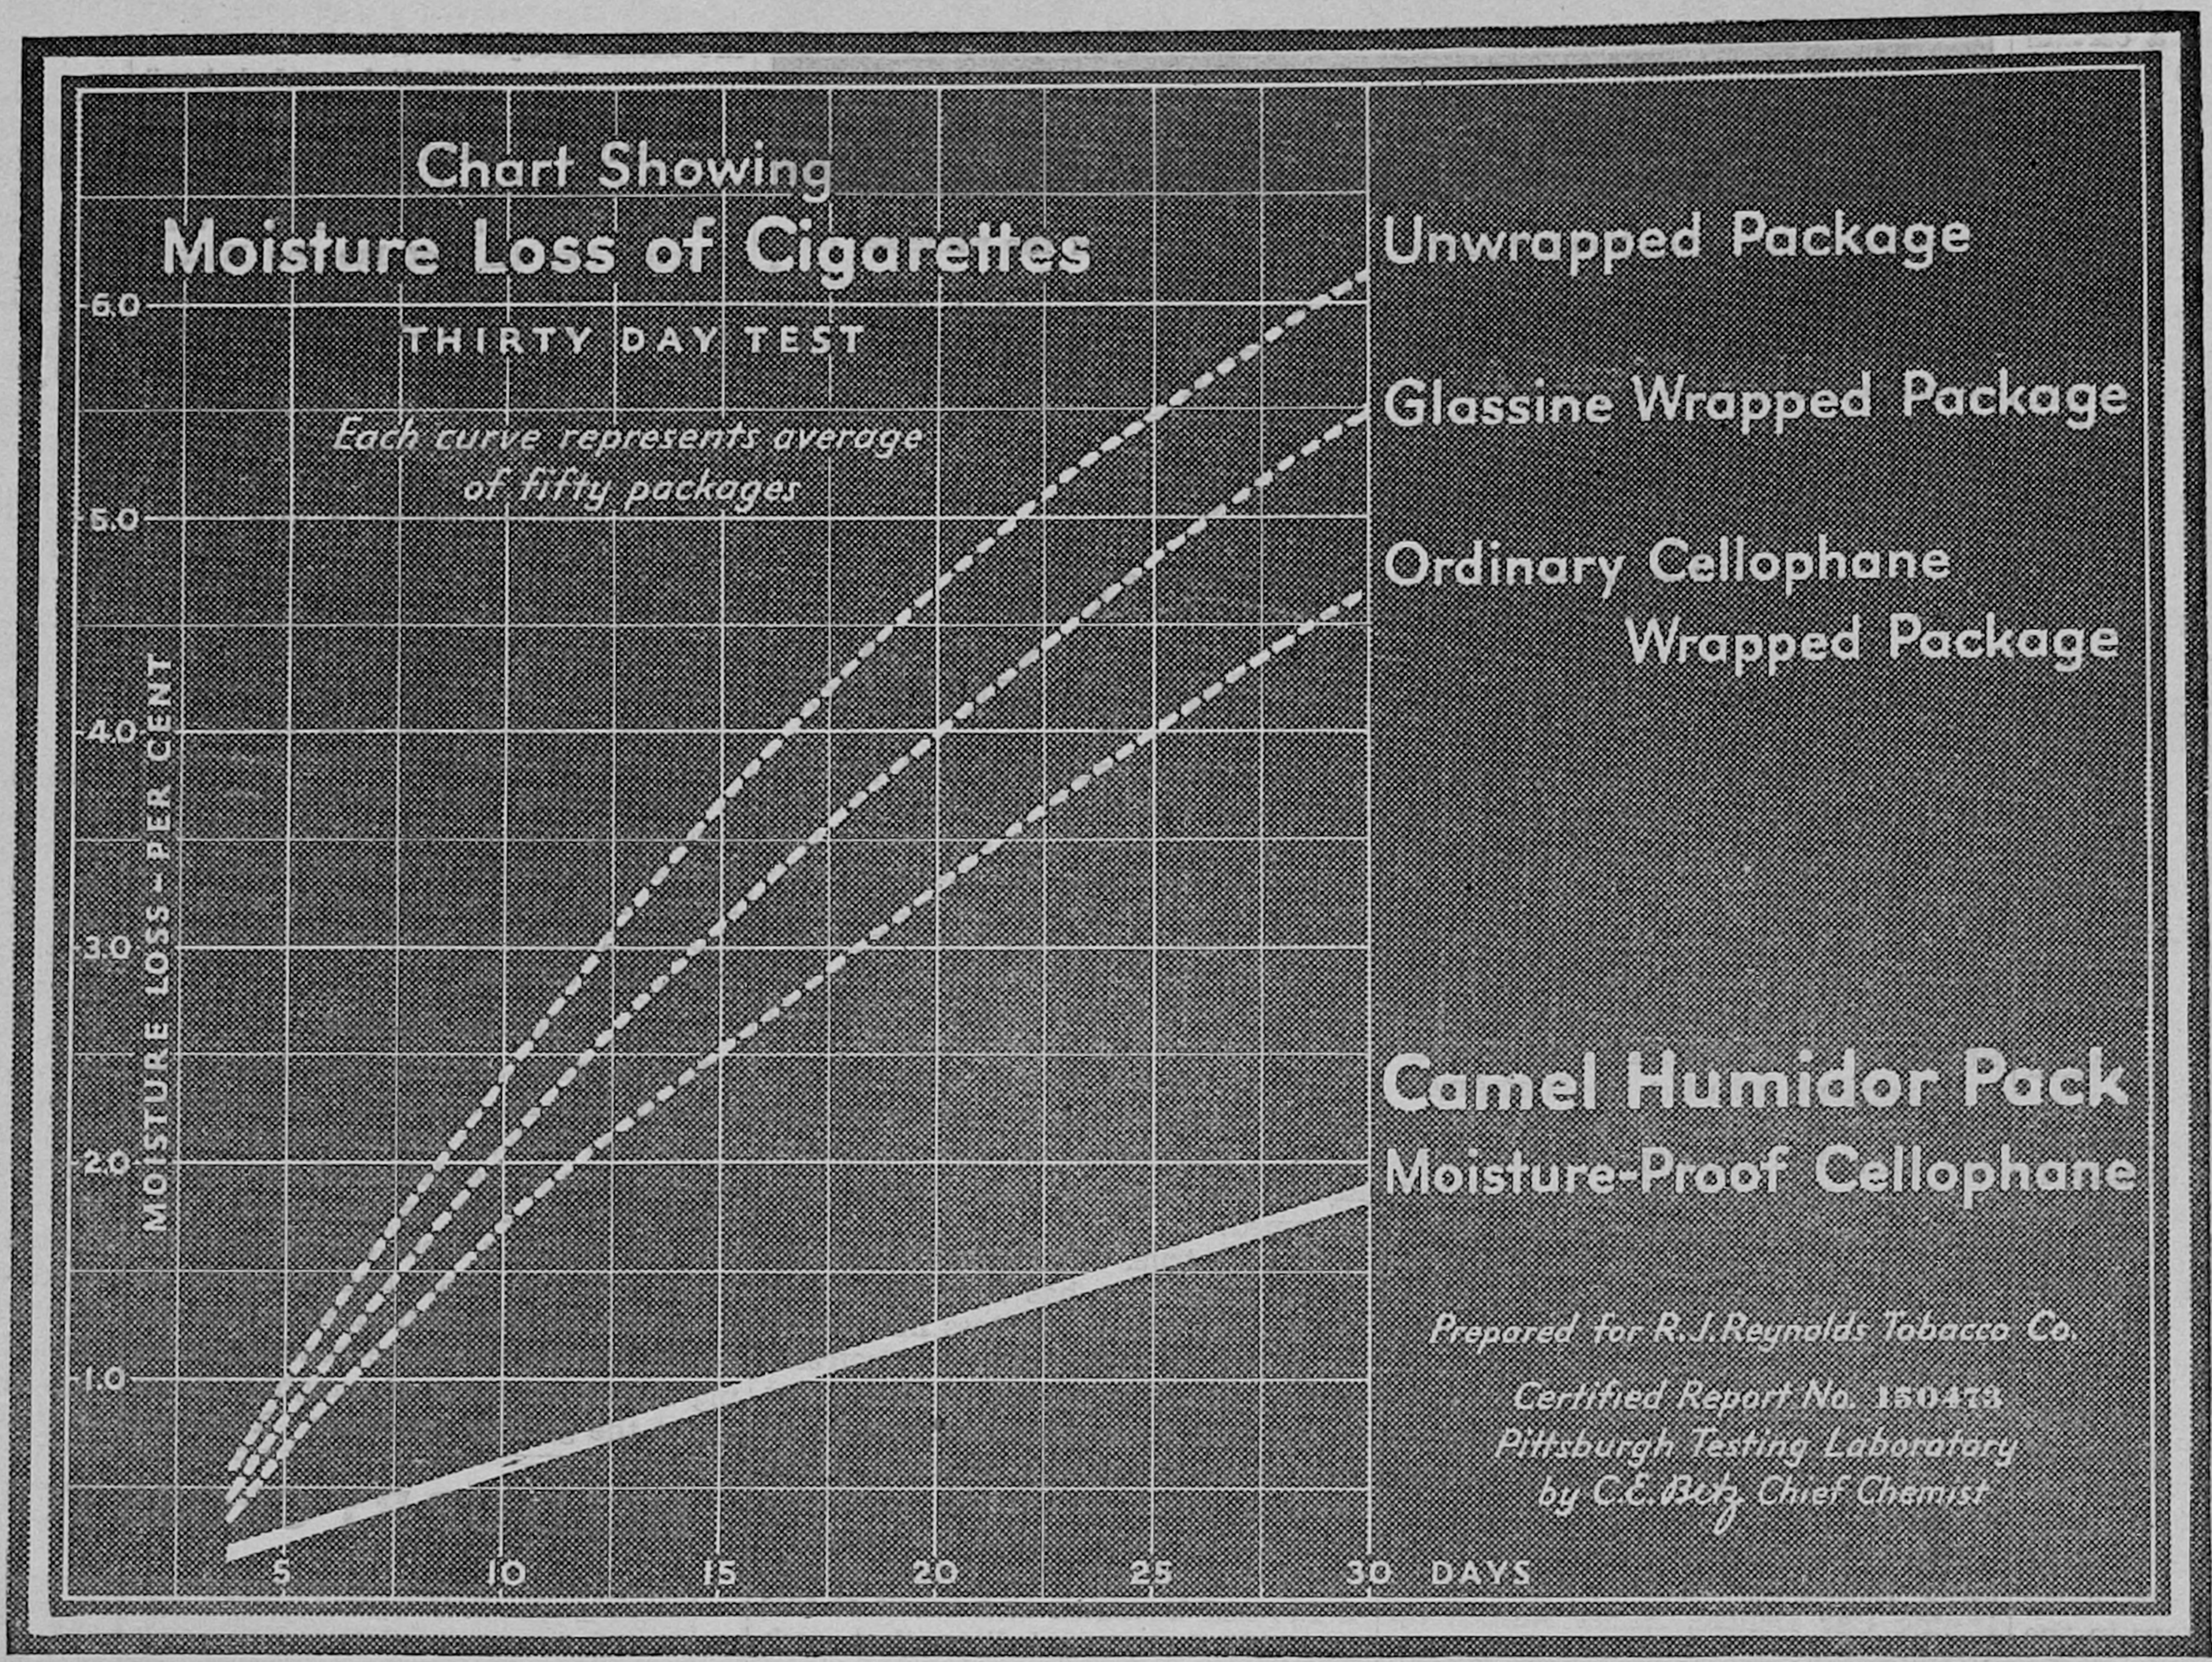
Pajama Clad Professors Parade Town

A faculty pajama parade, the first in the history of the college, was held last night at 11:30 p. m. There were from fifty to seventy-five participants who marched through the town to the tune of "Yankee Doodle Dandy" to the inn where refreshments were served and a prize of a quart of ice cream was awarded to Prof. Muscle Sholes whose agility of mind made the occasion possible.

There were many and variegated costumes which those of Prof. H. G. Owen, Prof. Will Burrage, and Prof. Pius Perkins were outstanding. Professor Owen wore very dainty pink silk trousers trimmed with white fur with a top of the same material all of which showed that good taste is not only in his mouth. On the other hand Professor Burrage was arrayed in a long lavender night gown with figured flowers of delicate green.

But Professor Perkins, simply dressed in an orange suit with a black bottom, black sash, and sleevelettes, most certainly took the cake. He was like a knight of old as with beaming demeanor he lightly tripped along by the more colossal figure of Prof. Veecy Harrington. Verily this parade was a huge success and a good time was had by all.

Smoke a FRESH Cigarette!



Cigarettes in prime condition have a moisture content of about 10%. It will be seen by the Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory Chart that cigarettes in the ordinary wrapped package lose more than half of their total moisture in thirty days and that only the Camel Humidor Pack delivers cigarettes to you in prime condition

THE whole country is talking about the throat-easy mildness and the prime freshness of Camel Cigarettes in the new Humidor Pack.

The above chart prepared by the Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory tells you why.

Please examine it carefully. It is an unfailing guide to cigarette selection and enjoyment.

As you can quickly see by the three upper curves on this interesting chart, cigarettes that lack the protection of the Humidor Pack lose their moisture rapidly from the day they are manufactured.

And day by day as this moisture disappears, the smoke from these cigarettes becomes harsher, hotter, more unkind to the smoker's throat.

Not so with Camels!

The Humidor Pack is moisture proof and sealed airtight at every point. It protects the rich, flavorful aroma of the choice Turkish and Domestic tobaccos of which Camels are blended.

Make these tests yourself

It is so easy to tell the difference between parched dry cigarettes and fresh prime Camels that it is no wonder everybody is reaching for a fresh cigarette today.

Your fingers identify stale, dried-out tobaccos at once. While a Camel is flexible and pliant.

Your ears can tell the difference too. For a dust-dry cigarette crackles under pressure.

But the real test is taste and there is simply no comparison between the rich mildness of a Camel and the hot, brackish smoke from a stale, dry cigarette.

Switch to Camels just for today then leave them tomorrow if you can.

CAMELS

● Artificial heat in houses and apartments soon dries the moisture out of cigarettes wrapped the old fashioned way. It is the mark of a considerate hostess, by means of the Humidor Pack, to "Serve a fresh cigarette." Buy Camels by the carton—this cigarette will remain fresh in your home and office.

ADAMS RACKET ROBS VICTIMS

with criminal records) attempt a subtle operation on the cerebellum which removes any discrimination the subject may possess.

After this treatment, it is a fairly simple matter for Adams, a devout follower of Coue, to develop any brain sets he desires. In this manner, the victims of the mill go forth into the world armed with propaganda which they are powerless to resist and through which they have poisoned countless thousands of students mentally and morally.

Extortion Practiced.

Besides having so harmful an effect upon those who go through the factory, it is understood that Raphael Hope, a laborer in the treasurer's office, has connived with Adams by including charges for such treatments in the regular college bills. It is understood that in the past Hope has received a ten percent rakeoff from Adams for so doing. The charge for a trip through the mill is twenty-five dollars per student, while statisticians have estimated that the expense for generating the necessary steam is two and one third cents per each victim.

When he was interviewed upon the subject, Dr. Muddy said:

"I am amazed when I realize what has been happening in this building where I have my office. When pipes were installed in my private office, I was told that it was to supply fresh ozone for the press club. Now I realize how greatly I have been deluded. I did suspect that all was not well with Adams when he started wearing a bullet-proof vest, carrying a machine gun, and began talking out the corner of his mouth. I trust that this will be a lesson to all faculty members and that we shall not have another outbreak of this sort. The factory will be destroyed at once by Mr. Weston and Dr. Swett. Let us hope that this will not be a lasting blemish on the fair name of Middlebury."

STEEPLE REPAIRING PLANS WIN AWARD

Blue Key society presented medals after chapel yesterday to the three winners of its first annual competition to discover the best method to straighten the spire of Mead Chapel.

The pewter disk, emblamatic of first prize, went to George Foote '31; Edward W. Markowski '32 romped away with second place award, a beautiful medallion wrought by the cunning hand of W. Stores Leigh from the top of a Campbell's soup can; Walter J. Nelson '32 got third honors, but due to Duke's natural modesty, he declines to exhibit the trophy, so your correspondent must remain ignorant of its description.

The judges were Parker Calvert '31, Fredrick Hughes '31, and Richard Berry '32.

The winning suggestions for restoration of the Mead Chapel spire are printed below:

George Foote '31

Fix wire to top of weather vane. Run it across to fifth floor of Hepburn. Have it go in one window of room on north end, and out an adjoining window, fastening it in knot. Draw wire taut. Then hold intramural tight rope walking on wire. Get all fat men in college to enter (this includes Connie Brink). Tension on wire will straighten chapel spire (or at lease bend it the other way, which will give variety).

Edward W. Markowski '32

Dig out under south foundation of chapel. This will cause settling of building on that side. Top part of spire will then be straight. (All rest of chapel will be crooked, but this contest asks for methods to straighten top part of spire only. E.D.M.)

Walter J. Nelson '32

Pile large number of C. C. lectures on chapel roof, on north side of base of tower, so bent part will overhang the documents. Blast of hot air raising with terrific force from lectures will blow tower out of its way, either breaking it off or straightening it (if everything works the way I plan).

Honorable mentions:

Prof. Charles A. Adams.

Call tower crooked in bearing and manner. Tower will become offended and will resolve to lead straight and upright life hereafter. Will straighten self automatically (if it has studied principles of education and knows laws of reaction).

Miss Jennie Bristol

Hold tower-sitting contest, and force all competitors to sit on south side of tower, thereby bending it away from north. This plan has the advantage of giving the students something to look at as they come up the walk to chapel.

Ed. Lockwood

Leave the damn thing the way it is and advertise for all the profitable tourist trade now going to the leaning tower of Pisa.

AMERMAN, DUFFIELD WIN SWIMMING MEET

With perfect weather conditions, the all Middlebury swimming races were run off yesterday afternoon at 3:30. Richard Amerman '31 won first place attired as a Gloucester fisherman and Thomas Duffield '33 took an easy second from a field of about two hundred competitors. Duffield was outstanding in that he finished well considering the fact that he was handicapped during the first part of the race due to the buckling under of his knees. While Amerman floated most of the way and waded the rest, Duffield skipped from puddle to puddle. The race started in front of Old Chapel and finished in front of Weybridge House.

Coach Brown had previously announced that a hydrant would be opened opposite Hamlin hall to make the home stretch a little better but it was considered rather dangerous since the sluiceway was then nearly overflowing. Next year it is planned to have sides constructed in the walk to store up any surplus water which might otherwise accidently escape.

HER FATEFUL CHOICE

by Sir Omicron Pie

A Chapter of Our American Romance

The story thus far: Our heroine, Christine May, has been persuaded by her pretended bosom friend, a perfidious viper, Myrtle Vane, to marry Lord Crestonhurst, a rich dissolute English lord, and to abandon Tom Dennison, her faithful poor betrothed. N. B. Myrtle is madly in love with Tom anyway. Christine discovrs Myrtle's faithlessness when Crestonhurst disowns her as a wife but desires to keep her as his mistress. The subsequent flight and escape of Christine from this wicked trickster is known far and wide. It is sufficient to say that Tom found her in a hospital where all was forgiven and forgotten. Plans are now being hurried forward for the wedding. N. B. Tom made some money and is now quite desirable. The story continues:

Chapter XXXIII

The Voodoo Queen

It were impossible to portray the fury that once more raged in the breast of Myrtle Vane when she learned how her rival had been reunited to Tom Dennison, and was again his intended bride.

"They shall never wed", she savagely hissed in her fiendish wrath. "I will kill the girl with my own hand, as I have sworn before, rather than to see her Tom's wife."

The haughty beauty allowed none of her secret fury to show in her smiling face when, because of the lifelong friendship between them, she was not only invited to the wedding, but chosen as one of the bridesmaids.

In order to carry out her dark purpose, Myrtle, in the guise of a friend, paid daily visits to her rival, and in every way made herself agreeable to Christine, so as to regain the latter's entire confidence.

Ah, poor Christine!

If she had only known what a cruel, relentless enemy she had in this fiendish female, who, while pressing kisses of friendship on her face, was engaged in the most diabolical of schemes to destroy her young life.

In order to encompass the death of her rival, the half demented heiress sought the aid of an aged voodoo queen who lived in a tumble down cabin in the woods near an old cemetery in the suburbs of the great city. Myrtle cruelly determined to seek the aid of this woman in forever removing Christine from her path. She no longer "drew the line at murder".

Having made this resolve, the young female, heavily cloaked and veiled, made her way to the home of the old negress.

She was received by the old voodoo queen herself, a most repulsive looking negress, whose dark eyes shone out of her wrinkled, ebonylike face like blazing coals, and who was clad in a long black robe that hung about her like a sable shroud, and was clasped at the waist by a girdle in the form of a huge serpent, while her frousled woolly hair was surmounted by a cap on which was woven strange hieroglyphics, and she carried a long staff, whose top was carved to represent a grinning death's head.

With a smile on her lips which served to make her more hideous, the witch-like creature, while two immense cats glided about her heels, dusted a chair for her visitor and then bade her be seated.

Myrtle at once made known to the voodoo queen the object of her visit. Oh, how great was her joy and triumph when after listening intently to her story, the old negress hoarsely whispered:

"If you pay me well your rival will be forever gotten rid of for I will give you a poison to administer to her that no doctor can discover the traces of either before or after her death?"

"But", excitedly gasped Myrtle, "how can this poison be administered to her without my being detected?"

The voodoo queen interrupted her with a loud mocking laugh.

"Ha, ha, child!", she guffawed, "there are more ways than one to do it!"

Then waving her staff so that the death's head on it seemed to dance weirdly to and fro, and while the black cats still crouching near her hissed an accompaniment while she keenly fastened her fiery eyes on Myrtle's dusky face, she continued with a demoniacal leer:

"If you are a pretended friend of the girl's what will be easier than for you to purchase a box of candy and invite her to share it?"

Then, with an evil, cruel grin that made her seem like a fiend incarnate, she added:

"I have a drug that is a poison so powerful that if only a few drops of it are administered on a piece of candy it will soon make the one taking it pass so quietly and painlessly into death that her sudden taking off is considered by even the most skillful of physicians to be the result of heart failure. Before you leave, I will give you some of the poison. When she is dead, as she will be soon after, her death will be ascribed to heart failure."

Soon after, Myrtle left the voodoo queen's abode with the fatal poison in her possession intended for administering to her former friend to make her the bride of Death instead of the handsome bridegroom who so fondly loved her.

Oh, the pity of it! the unuttertble pity of it! that much as she had already suffered, Christine's young life should be cut off from the land of the living by a fiendish plot like those conceived in the dark, past days of the Borgias.

would have refused to buy her a one-way ticket to Singapore.

But, since my time is limited (Laus deos) I can only say that the hero Horace Handsome played by V. Goodreds was one of the finest juveniles (why doesn't he learn how to kiss a woman?) that has ever graced our local stage. His perfect profile which was often turned to starboard for the benefit of the audience was remarkable. He should go far in dramatics—the farther the better.

The lighting effects were perfect except that the dumb electrician blew a fuse after the second act and so the last act was presented in utter darkness. The scenery was perfect (Fancy presenting a play of this type on a bare stage—haven't they ever heard of Amelia Grain?) and its symbolism was carried out perfectly to the smallest detail.

But, lest the ignorant reader believe that this was Dr. Verrie Special Goodreds' first attempt at acting, we must remind him that the learned gentleman has had a long career on the professional stage. In 1872 he played Accoucheur in THE BIRTH OF A NATION. For the next twelve seasons he played the part of Lynn in EAST LYNN. Since then until he came to Middlebury, he was before the public gaze as second-head usher in the second balcony at the Paramount. We look for great things from him in the future. (O yeah?) W.K.W.

thing he had sampled at 4 Cite Pigale in Paris) the party visited an inner room where they discovered a red-headed girl named Vivian Gordon who was sitting at a table holding a Newfoundland dog in her lap which answered to the name of Beatrice. On the wall above the young lady was a steel engraving of Dore's picturing one of the scenes from Dante's INFERNO.

Had Weakness for Red Hair.

After posing for Paramount, Fox Movitone, Universal and other newsreel concerns, Dr. Beers indorsed Old Gold cigarettes, Chevrolet cars, Marmola, Palmolive soap, and the Twentieth Century Limited (which he at first mistook for a wild-cat stock but later discovered was a railroad train).

The party then departed for Washington, D. C., where Dr. Beers spent twenty minutes in the Congressional Library where he corroborated his theory by discovering the MEMOIRS OF BEATRICE LILLIE which mentioned the fact that Dante Monzillo, a prize-fighter of note, had a weakness for women with red hair.

Hefflin Donates Plane.

With all these facts on hand, the party flew back to New York city in a Ford plane donated by Ex-Senator Hefflin for the purpose. On the way Beers rearranged his notes and made the final draft of his book which was published three days later by Simon and Schuster in cooperation with the MacFadden and Hearst interests.

Dr. Beers will return to Middlebury immediately after the Easter recess and will resume his teaching. It is understood that he plans to do a text for the college biology department this summer dealing with the sex life of the paramecium.

VESPER SERVICE IS LED BY LOCKWOOD

to imbibe a whole quart at a sitting!"

After bemoaning the economic depression, the local telephone service, and the inefficient street-lighting system in Frog Hollow, Dr. Lockwood concluded with these stirring words: "I shall yet live to see this college with the glory of being of the pioneers of the country, noted for her positive stand on the great questions of our young manhood and young femalehood." As he referred to the females, there was a catch in his throat and he muttered something that sounded suspiciously like "Mammy" but he may have been involking our Alma Mater.

At the conclusion of the address, the student body arose, shook itself as one aroused from a deep sleep, and passed out the sacred portal, feeling somehow a bigger man or woman.

FEAT FOR SCIENCE, WILEY MAINTAINS

water. None of these feats, however, can compared in any way with the proposed trip over the falls.

In an exclusive interview with a SUPMAC YRUBELDDIM reported, Miss Wiley stated:

Not Thrill Seeker.

"I realize that when I attempt this stupendous, remarkable, and daring trip over the falls, I am reaching a new and yet higher level in the accomplishments of my profession. Although I am at present the acknowledged leader in my chosen field, one can not rest upon his or her laurels. Isn't that true? And so, you may tell my public that they may continue to expect great things from me.

"I know that the descent of the cataract will be perilous. And that three lives have been lost already in the attempt. But I, the great Wiley, am undaunted. I would have it understood, however, that I am not a mere daredevil, a thrill seeker, nor a cheap entertainer alone. I am all three, with the addition of being a scientific investigator of a high order. Previous attempts at this remarkable exploit have failed because those who attempted the feat were not scientifically trained. Of course, you understand that I have not as yet, laid my plans completely. But rest assured, however, that my dear public will be kept informed as to all my plans."

It has not been definitely decided yet whether this event will be included in the entertainment course or in the vocational guidance lectures. At any event it will be in the capable hands of George Farrell, well known promoter and sports magnate.

SHOLES JUGGED FOR INCITING JAIL RIOTS

Cigar Store Coupons.

Claims to be Misunderstood.

As the result of a private investigation which the SUPMAC YRUBELDDIM has been conducting, it was discovered that Sholes himself served seven years of a twelve year sentence at Auburn for forgery. He was also questioned early this month in connection with the Vivian Gordon slaying. The only murder he has not been more or less connected with in the last ten years is that of Arnold Rothstein.

Upon being interviewed at Waterbury yesterday, Sholes was in a decidedly nervous condition. Beside tearing most of his hair out by the roots, he continually took great bites out of the wooden bedstead in his cell. Like any miscreant brought to bay, Sholes claims that his intentions have been misunderstood. He claims that he has been trying to follow the example of Eddie Guest and Cheerio in scattering sunshine to the shut-ins. He states that the reason he gave walking sticks to the lifers was so they would have an aid in walking about the prison yard in their old age.

Becomes Violent.

Upon being asked about the second charge, Sholes became violent so that it was necessary to bring the interview to an end. It is feared that his mind has been shattered by the terrible ordeal of the past few days. Said Dr. Kingsley in this connection: "One of the most pathetic things I have ever seen is this fine young man ruined by a few years of indiscretion. When I heard that some of his Sociology lectures were, shall I say a bit indelicate, I feared that all was not well, and I'm afraid he is going the same way Pansy did."

Sholes came to Middlebury in the fall of 1927 and since then except for certain lapses has been the picture of propriety.

PROF. INCARCERATED, OBSCENITY CHARGED

THE AMERICAN STALLION REGISTER, ELLEN OR THE WHISPERING PINES, JOSEPH ANDREWS, ULYSSES (with Rockwell Kent illustrations), and THE FIFTEEN JOYS OF MARRIAGE were confiscated.

Besides copies of these books, plates, binding equipment, and asbestos paper were discovered. These too were confiscated and it is understood that they were purchased from the police by W. Stores Leigh, the college editor who plans to print popular-priced editions for college students.

Upon being questioned regarding the matter, Hammond stated that his only reason for printing and distributing the books was so that local college students might see life as it actually existed at Yale and at other 'enlightened' institutions. He claims that all the books are true art and not merely pornography.

After posting securities valued at $1,000, Hammond was released. His next public appearance will be a lecture which he will deliver before the Weybridge Women's Club at the Morgan Horse Farm this evening. The confiscated books have been turned over to the Egbert Starr library where they will either be added to the Abernethy collection or placed upon the two cent a day table. Miss MacNeill has not decided which.

Braebrooke Flannels
by Braeburn

Small wonder that flannel suits are so popular.

Styled and tailored from this fashionable material into a garment ... so appealing ... so smooth ... so convincingly springlike, you'll understand at once why you must have one.

Even the price is pleasantly surprising—
